

SHEEP RANGE FINE HIGHLAND DOGS ARE IN SOCORRO GOING FAST

John W. Fullerton Says Rain and Snow Have Assured Good Supply of Early Grass and Plenty of Water.

John W. Fullerton, alias "the Sheep King," says rain and snow have assured a good supply of early grass and plenty of water.

The long drought has been broken, and cattlemen are optimistic and expect one of the best seasons for many years. The indications are for a bumper crop of grass and for fine and early conditions that should be a prosperity year for the sheep.

Robert Fullerton predicts that the season throughout of Albuquerque will be good and that stockmen will profit from it.

ART OF BUILDING

Prof. Roberts of University Gives Comprehensive Talk on Home Building.

Prof. E. Roberts, instructor in the engineering department of the college of sciences at the university, this evening occupied the assembly room, reading on the subject, "Modern Homes—Building True Combinations of the Elements of Goodness in the Art of Home Building and Associated Confidence in Similar Architecture in Real Estate," showing the practice successfully observed of introducing some outlandish architecture in a home which does not harmonize with the architecture of its neighbors and in no way harmonizes with the architecture of nearby buildings. He also advocated advocating an architect to plan the home, saying that such were more capable of judging what the completed structure would look like than a man who spoke of the different methods for letting contracts for houses, including advertising only two letting the contractor the completed house to one man the minor contracts to be added as time goes by. This he said was the most economical plan. The other was advocated was letting the various contractors for lighting and plumbing fixtures, but this, too, had its drawbacks as it took more time. Prof. Roberts strongly recommended that much care be given to the porches and windows when building in the southwest, saying that the porches here were an important part of the living room and that many small windows were preferable for health reasons to fewer large ones.

Canine Experiments With the Business End of New Street Car Proving Fatal in Most Cases, Say Motormen.

According to the motormen, the experiments of the canines on the business end of the street car prove fatal. During the past month there have been six deaths among the animals handled by motormen, the last who experienced such a fate being a dog which apparently became curious about the electrical equipment.
